It is reported that Paul Hymans, Belgian delegate, has received orders from Brussels to stand solidly with England in assuring respect for the league's pact even at the cost of Italy's withdrawal from the league.

Washington—Fixing of chapter quotas throughout the country for the signal for the formal launching of the campaign of the American Red Cross to raise a $5,000,000 relief fund for sufferers in the Japanese earthquake zone.

Divisional quotas totaling $5,250,000, the excess above the $5,000,000 goal being fixed to permit adjustments were announced at Red Cross headquarters last night, and divisional managers were instructed to name quotas for all divisional chapters of the organization.

Urges Haste.

The managers of the six divisions were urged to impress on all workers of the organization the necessity of meeting the responsibility placed upon it in President Coolidge's proclamation. Red Cross officials here expressed hope that the total would be quickly subscribed.

Despite the continued handicap of communication difficulties, the state department today was pressing its efforts to obtain information as to Americans in the stricken zone.

Looking for Americans.

Not only have lists of those of whom relatives and friends have sought information been sent to American diplomatic and consular offices in Japan, but consular officers stationed at other points in the Orient have been ordered to assist in the work of obtaining information as to American citizens and giving them any assistance needed.

TERRIFIC QUAKE

216 Shocks on Saturday, Making New Volcanoes and Islands.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

An the story of the Japanese disaster is unfolded in the fragmentary messages from Press Association correspondents, Japanese newspapers and individuals, it is apparent that the magnitude of the catastrophe has not been overdrawn.

In only one dispatch has there been a suggestion that the death list will not reach the proportions already indicated. This was a message from the Radio Corporation of America in Japan, which said the Japanese home office estimated the dead in Tokio at 10,000 and in Yokohama at 100,000.

On the other hand, Admiral Edw. A. Anderson, commanding the United States Asiatic fleet, says the latest unofficial reports give the casualties in the capital and Yokohama as 240,000 dead and 450,000 injured. A wireless message from Admiral Anderson to Rear Admiral Edward W. Eberle, commander of the Pacific battle fleet, conveying this information was picked up in San Francisco. Germany Is at End of Resistance

Berlin—Germany has arrived at the end of her tether so far as her further ability to finance passive resistance is concerned. This is the current impression in banking circles which expect Germany in the next few days will take the initiative toward proposing that official discussions be begun with French and Belgian governments.

That the Ruhr and the Rhineland fight has been lost by the government and the army of German resistors now is also tacitly admitted in political circles although the press has not yet discussed the situation with which the government is confronted. It is believed, however, that the German editors have been informed by Chancellor Brüning that the government would seek to force a solution of the Ruhr conflict in the near future.

The situation in the occupied areas also are already becoming worrisome both in respect to economic conditions and the temper of the resistors who no longer are able to maintain the solidarity necessary for a united front.

PRINCE LEAVES FOR CANADIAN RANCH

London—The Prince of Wales left today for the great open spaces of his Canadian ranch, traveling as Lord Newraw, just a plain peer, as his highness is going away to rough it a bit.

None of the members of his family went to the Waterloo station to bid him good-bye, for royalty does not offer ceremonious farewells to a peer. He drove to the station alone just as a young nobleman in a gray overcoat which shows its age.

He wore a pair of heavy shoes that were evidently of a good age. He wore a slouch hat, stained by sun, rain and dirt. There wasn't one uniform, not even a top hat in his traveling bag. It was his first time out since he was a young nobleman in a gray overcoat which shows its age.

But the prince could not quite get away with the attempt to be a more modest lord. Several thousands of his father's subjects assembled at the station and to them he remained the Prince of Wales and the most popular person in England.

During the 48 hours following the earthquake Tokio was a literal inferno. The thermometer was 150 degrees Fahrenheit.

MILWAUKEE WANTS COAL STRIKE MEN REUNION OF 32ND CALLED TO PARLEY

Harrisburg, Pa.—Governor Pinchot Wednesday afternoon led committees of anthracite mine operators and miners of the 32nd division, the Red Arrows, here Wednesday. The invitation, extended by the Milwaukee Association of Commerce, was received by the executive committee Tuesday night and read before the convention Wednesday.

The Milwaukee invitation will probably be accepted as the invitation was held by officers of the 12th infantry for their former commander, Brigadier General Earl Stewart. A wreath was placed on his grave by Major General Haan, commander of the division while overseas.

Brig. Gen. Guy M. Wilson, president of the 32nd division veterans' association, said the organization now has more than $25,000 in its treasury, representing accumulation of interest on original payments of life members, which were on the basis of ten francs each, and was invested in liberty bonds. Some of the money, he said, would probably be used in erecting a big red arrow monument in Washington.

Washington—Reports compiled by the department of agriculture from four thousand farmers in all parts of the country show an average production in cost in 1922 for wheat of $1.23 a bushel, for corn 66 cents, and for oats 53 cents. Against these figures, the average sale price realized on the crop was $1.11 a bushel for wheat, 72c for corn, and 48 cents for oats.

The department added that it felt the figures "closely approximated the average production costs incurred by farmers throughout the country during the period covered."

SELECTING CATTLE FOR COUNTY SALES

Pavilion Coming Into General Use for Holding of Stock Auctions.

Selections are being made for the Rock county Milking Shorthorn sale to be held in Janesville Oct. 24, starting a series of three day Shorthorn sales on consecutive dates. There will be 80 head of the Milking Shorthorns sold in Janesville, Oct. 24 and 80 head of the same breed in the farm of Seth Crall, Evansville, route 17, Oct. 25.

Forty head of dairy type Shorthorns are wanted by the county commission, 20 females and 10 bulls, and it is intended every cow will have a milk production record, either official or in the cow testing association.

"We have a quality selection of cattle," stated R. M. Lamb and Robert Traynor of the sales committee.

Oct. 25 there will be 40 head from the famous herd of Harvey Little sold in the county livestock pavilion. All of this stock will also have production records to prove dairy ability.

On the 16th the southern Wisconsin Guernsey sale will be held at Janesville, about 120 passing through the ring. During the morning 50 head of high grades will be sold, and in the afternoon 50 head of purebreds, including a number of the Guernseys that were prize winners in the Rock and Jefferson county show herds. A successful sale is expected on Guernseys, for this breed of cattle has an active demand.

At the Rock County Holstein association meeting Tuesday night plans were made for the county consignment sale to be held in Janesville Oct. 30, when 70 head of purebreds will be sold.

Success at the last sale has spurred the Holstein association to draw more strict regulations, admitting only superior quality animals to the county sale.

During October approximately 350 head of cattle will be sold in the county livestock pavilion. Following the sale, the cattle will come to the hog sales, showing the use to which the pavilion is being put by the breeders and farmers.

BLUE RIBBONS FOR ROCK COUNTY HERD

Clean House at Fond du Lac—Win Eighteen Championships.

Rock county's show herd stock made a clean sweep of the blue ribbons and nearly all the championships at the Fond du Lac fair this week. There was good county fair competition in the livestock pavilion, there being 32 Guernseys, 150 Holsteins, three herds of Ayrshires and three herds of Jerseys to compete against.

Fond du Lac fair spectators were surprised at the number of high quality of the stock Rock county entered, despite the fact the show herds have been out on the circuit six weeks. The stock showed in better condition at Fond du Lac than the animals showed at the opening of the state fair.

On Guernseys the Rock county stock took four championships and 11 first ribbons against four other herds.

"Who is Champion?"

There were no age bulls shown that stood a chance against Walcott's Ollie Hyland and this Holstein answered the fifth fair championship of the season. In all, Rock county Holsteins won seven first and four championships. The Ayrshires owned by J. C. Nisbet took 14 blue ribbons. The Milking Shorthorns won 14 blue ribbons and the five championships. The fat Hereford steer from the Bert Austin herd was grand champion of the fat cattle display.

The age cow from the John W. Jones herd, Milton, was senior champion, the senior yearling champion, the Rock county farm, yearling champion, and the Funk Brothers heifer, call champion. Fond du Lac does not have a grand championship female class, splitting the championship awards three ways. The two year old from the John Geddis herd was a blue ribbon winner and the senior yearling from the J. C. Nisbet herd. The Funk Brothers bull was also a blue ribbon winner.

In Guernseys, May King's Duke of

Waukesha was champion, the Dougan two year old, first place, the Muna age cow, senior champion, and the yearling from the Knudson herd, yearling champion, with the Golden West heifer from the Mann herd, call champion.

Jersey Bull Wins

The two Jerseys shown from Rock county, owned by W. O. Douglas and Son, Hanover, were blue ribbon winners. The age bull was champion. On the Milking Shorthorn herd made an unusually good showing for many of the Fond du Lac farmers had never seen true dual purpose type at their fair before. Hadden's entry, Telurita's Fame, won the senior championship, and Rye Brothers' the yearling honor. R. V. Lamb and Son took the championship on age cows on Vera's Jewel.

The age cow, Julia Harwood, from the "Crashburst" farm, has been entered in the milk and butter-fat championship contest. This cow freshened a few hours after being shown in the ring at Milwaukee and has developed an udder that is without a flaw.

The start on swine judging Wednesday brought two more firsts to Rock county on Berkshire from the George Clark farm, Avalon.

Show Hunter Here

The sweepstakes blue banner won by Rock county at the Wisconsin state fair is on exhibition at the Janesville Chamber of Commerce. On the return of the county herds, a window display of the banners and ribbons will be exhibited in different cities and villages of the county, according to the Farm Bureau.

Rock county farmers won more than $5,000 in premium money at the state fair. The county herds came through for more than $1800 in cash, assuring that all expenses will be paid out of premium won. The Fond du Lac fair will net more than $900.00, according to J. C. Nisbet, manager.

The Jefferson and Walworth county herds are being shown this week at Elkhorn, furnishing an interesting inter-county show for rich honors.

The Rock county herds will be shipped next week to Richland Center.

JUDGE MAXFIELD READY FOR PROBE

Investigation Into Crime in County and Aug. 12 Mixup Begins Thursday.

After two postponements necessitated by preliminaries of explanation and argument, the Rock county municipal court's investigation into conditions in Rock county and particularly in regard to the Worthington-Eddell-Stein controversy is on the docket to begin at 9 a. m. Thursday in the municipal court. Judge H. L. Maxfield will conduct the probe.

The inquiry, it is understood, will be in the nature of grand jury proceedings except that the municipal judge will act in the same capacity as a juror would ordinarily and the public will be allowed to hear the testimony of most of the witnesses.

The court has announced that it is a criminal investigation conducted under the statutes and the Rock county municipal court act and says no witness will be required to give testimony incriminating himself. The appearances of attorneys will be welcomed insofar as they may aid in establishing the truth and any one may give testimony, publicly or privately, even if he has not been subpoenaed as a witness, Judge Maxfield says.

The investigation may become broad in scope and involve any kind of crime known to have been committed in Rock county. Particular attention will be paid to ascertaining the nature and extent of injuries suffered by Paulman Patrick Stein in his mix-up with the Beloit newspaper men and Mrs. Eddell on the night of Aug. 12.

A dozen witnesses have been subpoenaed, the court says, and among the attorneys expected to be present are: District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie, Mr. O. Mount, T. S. Nolan and E. D. McDowan.

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

WEDDED
An amber-breasted thrush upon a thorn
Made glad the wind-swept tree
With a mellow melody.
To hearten buds and stars and little Leaves unborn.

He sang and loved and sang, that throbbing heart,
Till from the ivy led
His voice cried, "O my God, Do stop your weeping and help with this here datted nest."

1,500 ENROLLED IN GRADE SCHOOLS

Nearly 250 Less Than Last Year Due to Formation of Junior H. S.

Due to the formation in the middle of last year of the junior high school, enrollment in the city grade schools this year appears smaller than last. Figures compiled by Supt. F. O. Holt after a principal's meeting Tuesday afternoon show total grade school attendance to be 1,579, while last year's similar figure was 1,811. However, this year all seventh and eighth grade pupils are in the high school, combined with freshmen to form the junior high school. Figures otherwise would be about the same, with no phenomenal increase in spite of many people moving into the city.

The total is divided as follows:
Kindergarten, 221; first, 241; second, 236; third, 207; fourth, 207; fifth, 223; sixth, 202, making a total of 1,537, to which is added 20 in the model grades and 14 in opportunity room. High school attendance figures are not yet available. It is not expected to be much higher than last year.

Various matters were taken up at the meeting Tuesday including discussions of the points with which teachers are having trouble, and a number of matters of policy.

The Women of Mooseheart Legion will hold a bake sale Friday, September 7, at Farnum's store, starting at 10 o'clock.

TOBACCO HARVEST UNDER FULL HEAD

New Crop Fast Going Into Sheds and Is in Good Condition.

Tobacco harvesting in the southern Wisconsin section is now in full swing, and the farmers busy. The new tobacco crop is going into the sheds fast, although there is a great shortage of field labor. In almost every section of Rock and adjacent counties where the leaf is grown the tobacco is in good harvest condition. That transplanted during the extreme hot period early in the season shows a tendency to be somewhat backward. Continued good weather with no frosts yet means that this late tobacco will come through as well as that planted during a more favorable period.

"There is certain to be a good percentage of binder tobacco," declared Edgar Arthur, warehouse manager of the Northern Wisconsin Co-operative Tobacco pool. "This makes a factor of big tobacco and growers should watch that there is a free circulation of air during the curing process in the sheds."

Early bids made. There has been a scattering of bids on the non-pool tobacco at good prices. However, the bids are not fully indicative of the prices for the 1933 crop, remembering the radical drops experienced in the past soon after the first bids were made. Much tobacco has been purchased in Rock county, as yet even though the acreage this year is considerable more than last year.

Green warehousing where stemming operations are being carried on for Liggett and Myers. A new stunt is being followed in Janesville on stemming world cases of tobacco are sent out to different people at their homes, the operation completed and tobacco delivered back to the warehouse. This policy of "home stemming" has been followed for some time in Watertown.

Lack Field Labor. Final payment on the Southern Wisconsin crops in the Wisconsin pool are to be made to the growers in the near future, announces the pool. It is not expected that full payments will be made on the crops sowed and raised until the tobacco is sold.

The few changes in the officers of the pool has not caused much discussion among Rock county growers. There is a pool member that additional members should be taken in to strengthen the control of the present crop. The non-pool member is inclined to believe that the pool is hoping to be one of the favored ones in the early bidding.

Growers are having to co-operate on the tobacco field labor for high on the wages being paid by the tobacco growers for help during the harvest season and the pool to the average laborer in the city.

EASTERN CITIES HAVE GOOD CAMPS

Majority Are Municipally Owned and Operated, Says Janesville Tourist.

"That tourist camps to be properly maintained should be equipped with provision store for the use of travelers, and be supervised by a permanent manager," was the statement made Wednesday by G. P. Ehringer, 211 Jackson street, who with his wife and three children recently returned from a month's tour of the east. With the exception of a short period, the party stayed at tourist camps during the entire trip.

Some of the camps, said Mr. Ehringer, are equipped with all sort of devices for the comfort of the campers. In Dayton, O., the city maintains a reading room and in several towns shower bath compartments are provided.

The great majority of the camps are part of municipal parks and kept up by the city. A small charge is sometimes asked for the upkeep of the grounds. The two largest camps, according to Mr. Ehringer, are located at Washington and Niagara Falls.

The Ehringer family spent some time in the vicinity of Boston and visited several places of historical interest, including the home of Paul Revere. They also inspected the old war vessel Constitution, which was purchased by the school children of New England and placed on exhibit in the city of Boston.

KAMPS TESTIFIES IN ARNOLD TRIAL

Defense Fights Admission of Letters to Records but Is Overruled.

(By Associated Press.)

Superior.—Direct evidence to substantiate eight of the 21 counts in the federal indictment charging Victor E. Arnold, former Madison Bond company president with using the mails to defraud, was admitted in exhibit form by Judge C. Z. Luse during the session of the trial in federal district court here Wednesday morning. Eight circulars and letters received from the Madison Bond company by Ralph Kamps of Janesville, a member of the Taylor-Kamps Land company, former Madison Bond company agents, were identified by the witness and entered as direct evidence in counts 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14 over the strenuous objection of defense counsel.

W. E. Doll, Lancaster; Albert Croft, Lancaster; E. H. Spiegelberg, Escobedo; J. P. Nauert, Escobedo; Glen Nelson, Galena and Henry Zander, Cross Plains, were called during the morning session as government witnesses.

Paul N. Grubb, Janesville "special assistant to District Attorney W. H. Dougherty, conducted the examination of each of the witnesses. Judge Hal C. Corbett, New York, chief defense counsel, was denied a motion to strike all testimony entered by Kamps.

A near clash between J. F. Cass, Madison, Wis., banker and former secretary-treasurer of the Madison Bond company and Victor E. Arnold, who was on trial here charged by the government with using the mails to defraud, occurred during the afternoon session of the trial in federal district court here Tuesday.

Cass had been called to the stand to identify several of the books of the defunct company. He identified a book, government's exhibit number 253, as one which contained the stock transactions by which Arnold charged some time ago that certain employees of the company had embezzled $100,000. Cass declared that the pages regarding the transaction had been removed from the book.

From the book, Arnold, sitting beside his chief counsel, Judge Hal C. Corbett of New York, was heard to mutter something. The witness turned indignantly to a position facing the defendant and rising asked "what was that?" The defendant, however, refused to repeat his statement.

Mr. O'Reilly Testifies
Father L. P. O'Reilly of Mineral Point, on the stand before Cass, told of receiving a check for $600 from the defendant, Arnold, for the purpose of the defendant's legal expenses. He stated he had returned the check to Arnold.

Upon cross examination, Judge Corbett asked Father O'Reilly if he had heard of Arnold as a charitable man and cited the $25,000 Christmas party Arnold had given the city of Madison. The priest stated he had heard that Arnold was charitable.

We have come to the realization of a new brotherhood among nations and among men. It came through the performance of a common duty.
A brotherhood that existed unseen has been recognized at last by those called to the camp and trenches and those working for their victory at home. This spirit must not be misunderstood. It is not a gospel of ease but of work, not of dependence but of independence, not of an easy tolerance of wrong but a stern insistence on right, not the privilege of receiving but the duty of giving.

—CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Tens of thousands of years ago the sea was agitated and from its bowels came the isle of Nippon and the others adjacent which make up the insular empire of Japan. Peopled at first by barbarians it gradually came under Chinese domination until it was changed from its original savagery to a nation bearing the undisputed marks in face and form of Mongolian ancestors.
This land which came to be the Flowery Kingdom, made by earthquake and seismic shudders, was isolated for centuries from exploring whites.
It was a Japan, but it had borrowed all its customs as well as costumes. Its religion, its ancestor worship, its fatalism, its cleverness at judo and cloisonne and diaper work, its ability in carvings and its whole life, action and all the things which set one nation over against another as different, were imported from the land of the Manchus and of Confucius. Jesuits came, and established a mission some 450 years ago, but eventually they were driven out. Japan held no communication with the outside world, permitted no stranger to land on her shores, held no commerce with outsiders. It remained for a small fleet of American vessels under Commodore Matthew Perry, in 1854, to negotiate the first treaty which Japan made with an outside nation and from that day to this, Japan has been going forward as a power in the world.

Imitators still in government and constitution, in mechanical details and industry, she has often bettered her teachers. Possessed of an overwhelming ambition she has buried herself under an enormous load of debt for military and naval armaments. Her common people have been as poor and as ignorant while all this was going on, as in the days of the joint rule of the Shogun and the Mikados.

No matter how much the people of the Occident have studied her people and her customs, how familiar they may have become by long residence, there was something ever hidden and mysterious and uncanny about the Japanese. They disclaim this characterization, call attention to the acceptance of rules of law and life much the same as the Occidental may boast, but out of it all there has been the barrier of something inscrutable and unexplained. It may be the fault of the Occidental, who never has been very successful in reading the Oriental mind, but it still remains that the Japanese is not yet of our civilization.

From the day Fujii came up from the sea, this volcanic monster has shaken the Nippon islands several hundred times a year. Thousands have been killed in earthquakes and by tidal waves.
Great changes are going on in the interior of the earth which find vent in seismic disturbances of a tragic and horrible character at some third place in the shell and Japan has been one to suffer most.

America, with her usual generosity will send to Japan the five million dollars called for by the Red Cross. Color, race and other differences are wiped out in the common human horror at so great a tragedy as has come to Japan. The United States disclosed to this medieval nation the open road to civilization; it is possible we may also show her the road to a greater humanity and disinterested unselfishness.

Instead of scrapping battleships Italy appears to be scrapping treaties.

The Gangster as a Hero.

They killed a gangster in the street last week in New York just as he was leaving court, where, following the shooting of a rival, he had been hailed and discharged. He was immaculately dressed. He had never done a stroke of work in his life. He began by petty thefts, followed that with joining a gang, sold tickets to poodles which were never held, made merchants on the street buy these tickets or suffer a continued series of indignities. Sabotage was a weapon used frequently. Gangs fought gangs and as long as the murder and mayhem was confined to gangs the New York police failed to act. Lawyers were able by dilatory tactics to secure acquittal if trial should follow and to always obtain quick release if the police made the error of arresting a member. The gang chief was a hero. He has been written in romance and never has he appeared but as more sinned against than sinning.
And this particular "Kid Dropper" was never convicted because he had a coterie of perjurers with the ready alibi. He was a successful example of the workings of the American criminal law of which we have need for shame and greater need for reforming.

Next to the watermelon the coal situation remains the world's greatest gamble.

Under the new financial regime of Austria, bank deposits have enormously increased and hidden assets and gold have come to the surface.

HOW FASHIONS ORIGINATE

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

New York—Where the ideas for women's clothes come from is popularly supposed to be an almost unanswerable question.
Yet the mystery is not quite so mysterious if you consult a design expert. Elyse Creange is art director for a well known silk firm in this city, a firm which makes everything in the silk line from dress goods to materials for draperies and gravels. An art director for a large and versatile establishment like this must know what is going to be fashionable well in advance of its appearance in the shops. It takes time to plan designs suitable for specific fabrics and to have the goods on hand when the market is ready. So Mr. Creange studies and observes at the possible sources of fashion, just as dress creators do.

He says that some of the current fashion influences can be traced back about two years. At that time there was in Marseilles a colonial exposition, and the French provinces displayed their products and achievements. American women probably saw no connection between their clothes and an exposition in southern France, but designers gathered there expecting some revelation of importance to the fashion world.

Of the various exhibits, Mr. Creange and other designers were most interested in the Indo-Chinese. A ballet of the Cambodian court was performed by special permission of its royal owner and the designers absorbed impressions of fascinating colors, lines, and designs. Three or four of the well known dress creators came back and began to produce garments reminiscent of the Indo-Chinese.

The native costumes could not be used as they were not suitable to change details. The silhouette of the native dress—long narrow tunic effect—was retained, however, and can be seen today on the streets.

As soon as it was seen that the new lines would appeal to the dress trade, designers began to study and adapt. The dressmaker can fashion a single dress over night, using the materials that happen to be handy, but it takes more time to get a fashion idea ready for the great American public. Vivid and exotic colors and designs, which seem beautiful with certain silks and settings, are ridiculous in this country. Examples of this are seen among the women of southern Europe, who came to our shores wearing kerchiefs and skirts. Over there our dress clothing would be out of the picture, but here the situation is reversed. So a good deal of experimenting and adaptation was necessary before the styles of the colorful East could be fitted to meet American limitations.

Meanwhile, other forces were at work. At the Marseilles exposition were men who, Mr.
Creange says, are not so much fashion artists as fashionable artists. They are not directly connected with the great clothing industry, but they keep in touch with it and they like to be in the fashion. These men saw the various colonial exhibits and absorbed impressions of the eastern lands. They are poetic individuals. Their work is more dream-like and less precise than that of the designers for industry.

It is only a step from Indo-China to China in dream, and when one of these artists was asked to take charge of the Grand Prix Ball in Paris last summer, he decided to use a Chinese theme.
All the guests at the ball were requested to wear Chinese or some eastern type of costume.

Fashion designers attended the function in full force. They noted that in all the motley array of beautiful Chinese costumes blue seemed to be the most "sympathetic" color. Word went around that Chinese blue and colors that harmonize with it would be popular.

"This," says Mr. Creange, "was the crystallization of a note that was in the air since the Marseilles exposition, and it is only at the present time that the Chinese influence is beginning to appear."

The Egyptian craze is not to be traced back in the same manner as the fashion just described.
When excavations of Lord Carnarvon gained great prominence in the public prints, manufacturers realized that it might be well to launch an Egyptian style. This was done, in spite of the fact that Egyptian motifs can not be adapted easily.
The designs are stiff and of pronounced characteristics. There was no time to study ways of making the Egyptian angles and pictures more subtly modern. Large quantities of Egypt itself, rather than an Egyptian influence, were presented to the public as the latest thing. These King Tut styles themselves illustrate clearly the difference between the ordinary "influence" of fashion that filter through slowly and the styles of unusual origin which do not go through the filtering process.

In all of the incidents described save the Egyptian episode France is the scene of action. There are balls and exhibits in other countries of the world. And we hear now and again that American fashions are independent of Parisian domination. Why should designers from this country so persistently seek Parisian inspiration?

Mr. Creange says that no one dressmaking house can influence the fashion world alone. It takes many people thinking along the same lines to evolve new ideas. It is obviously to the advantage of designers to see the same significant things if they are to dream along the same lines.
Paris has always been the fashion capital, and American fashion artists still make pilgrimages there to attune themselves to the current thought.

There is one other reason why Paris remains so important socially. Mr. Creange points out that the average woman does not know how to judge the fine points of difference between two dresses, but that in Europe there are fifteen or twenty women who understand the art of dress.
One of these women, an actress, perhaps, is impressed with some feature of dress design different from what she has been wearing and she asks a designer to turn out something reminiscent of it. Such a woman is known as one who is always seeking the new and beautiful in clothes.
A small group who watch her will be inspired to wear something similar, and the group that watch them will adapt the copies of the original.
The circles become wider until the fashion reaches the general public.

The originator of style is trying to look different. The masses, on the other hand, are trying to look alike. That is why designers muse over notes and influences, trying to translate a dream of the vivid south or the exotic east into articles of wearing apparel that will attract many people. The result must appeal at the same time to the feminine desire to be distinctive and to the equally feminine desire to be in the fashion.

The government is getting into better shape.
Thousands of superfluous officials have been discharged. The railroads, always a drag on the taxpayers of the empire, have been rehabilitated to a large extent and reorganized under British management. Unemployed persons have been reduced and Austria for the first time in five years is beginning to see daylight and get out of her despondency through the aid of allied financiers.

Uncle Sam uses $250,000,000 worth of soap on his children each year. Wisconsin's soap bill is $5,933,000, a year and 47,855,760 pounds are used. Then all the dirty political linen does not get clean.

If Bergdoll could only get that hundred thousand of gold he buried he might buy the whole German country.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

When friendly hands come in and bring
To me some kindly offering,
It pleases me some day to take
A gift to them for friendship's sake.

I jump with joy when they make known
A trinket they would like to own;
And with that gift to them I go
My gratitude and love to show.

Life daily plays the friend to me.
It gives me splendors I may see,
The stars at night, the morning sun,
The playground where the children run.

It gives me laughter through the years,
Strength for my task and faith for tears,
Love at my hearth, and all I own—
A new day when today has flown.

Then shall I taking while I live So much from life, not also give
A little of myself in turn.
That life my gratitude may learn?

Shall I take all, and day by day
Give nothing back along the way?
Shall naught of service come from me That life on earth may happier be?

Or shall I not rejoice to find Some little need for being kind,
And seize the chance this gift to make
To one from whom so much I take?

That heart is cold and dull as stone
Where gratitude is never known,
And thoughtless he who while he lives Takes all from life, but nothing gives.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

Two hundred million dollars in currency and gold was moved in New York from one bank to another in fourteen armored motor cars, each guarded by armed men and equipped with a machine gun which could shoot twenty-one bullets a second. It is possible that the owners of this money thought there was any-ever moved of such a thing as a holdup in New York?

Waitresses in trousers will not be introduced

10,000 VETS IN BLUE MARCH IN G. A. R. PARADE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Milwaukee — Turning aside for the moment from the sunset trail, 10,000 civil war veterans formed in regular marching order of the departing parade into line with reble stride in the annual parade of the Grand Army of the Republic here today. In addition to the marchers automobile after automobile, carrying those whose physical condition refused to permit them to follow the flag on foot, wheeled into line, completing the nine divisions which formed a column of four files front.

Headed by a motor cycle division and a platoon of police, Colonel Tom L. Johnson, Grand Marshal, commander in chief James W. Willett, Governor J. J. Blaine and Past Commanders in Chief formed the first division.

Civil War Musicians Directly behind the automobiles of the first division followed the civil war musicians, the Pennsylvania A. R. band swinging into marching music which carried their comrades into battle nearly sixty years ago.

The column began forming at 8: 15 o'clock and at 9:45 Col. Johnson, reported to George A. Howsley, chief of staff that the signal gun was awaited. Commander in chief Willett signaled the line to fire promptly at 10 a. m., and immediately the first division began to move. Marching at the rate of ninety steps a minute, each unit had fallen into place. Sixteenth street was reached with the reviewing stand in front of the Postoffice building, one and two tenths miles away. The stars and stripes state flags, with department and unit flags made a brave showing as the slowly moving body passed the thousands who jammed the sidewalk to the curb, cheering each division as it passed.

At Reviewing Stand Reaching the reviewing stand, the commander in chief with staff and the governor and mayor took their stations. Passing their commands officer, the color bearers dipped their flags, officers with side arms carried rifles and swords, and those not carrying side arms touched the brim of their hats. The comrades in the ranks did not salute, but passed with eyes turned toward the reviewing stand. The march was continued several blocks to prevent congestion.

The Riddle of the Spinning Wheel

By M. E. and T. W. HANSHEW
Being an Exploit in the Career of Hamilton Cleek, Detective Copyright, 1922, by Doubleday, Page & Co. and published by arrangement with McClure Newspaper Syndicate of New York City.

"Certainly. Only tell us how you traced the murder to its proper source," and Henry James Tavish should have done such a thing."

"That I will, and in the shortest way possible. But you must let me tell my story in my own particular manner," replied Cleek with a slight smile and a warmth of feeling toward this very impetuous and generous-hearted young man.

"There's still a good deal to be learned up before you can understand, and I'm afraid some of it won't make particularly good hearing. But that I cannot help. Men are faint of heart, and when temptation is concerned, and when there is a pretty woman in the question it's all right. Lady Paula, it all happened long before you entered your husband's life, so that there is nothing for you to forgive—but, as I say, when a pretty woman enters at one door, a million other very often flies out at another."

"I found, among other things yesterday, when I was looking for the will in your father's desk, after having appropriated his keys, first a pile of old love-letters, written upon paper which I ascertained had been bought in the village, and bearing a postmark which was identical with the name 'Jeanette.' I confess I did not know just where these letters entered into the case at all, but something told me that they were a big factor in the intuition—policeman's sixth sense—call it what you will. I looked into the matter, and then discovered, after some probing through my man Pollock (who, by the way, Mr. Narkom, deserves high commendation in this case), that they were actually written by James Tavish's sister, Jeanette, and that to put it baldly, for which I trust you will forgive me—that your father had been carrying on a secret liaison with this girl for some years upon promise of marriage, and had, in fact, got her into very unfortunate trouble."

"But he never married her—he married me—I am his legal wife. I swear that!" struck in Lady Paula, in a high-pitched, terrified voice. "I know nothing of this woman at all—everything in our marriage was in order."

"Or that there is not the smallest doubt, Lady Paula," returned Cleek severely. "Only one thing is true: a promise of marriage. That is where man is unfortunately so unfaithful. He merely left her to bear her trouble alone—a fair of course, not a vindictive for her and the possible issue of their unhappy union—and, being a faithful woman, it broke her heart, and both she and her child died as a consequence of this neglect. When the wish to live is gone, there is little else to bind one to this earth at such times, my friends, and so she and her unborn little one passed out to a happier realm. Much of this I have gleaned from those letters; much I have deduced in the natural course of events. The final clue was discovered in James Tavish's own room, where this photograph, bearing the date of her death and that of her child, and having one word written across the face of it, was discovered in a box on his dressing-table."

He handed the piece of pictured pastboard to the young man, and then, in turn, watching their faces to see the effect of it upon them individually. Much astonishment, dull grief, showed in Ross and Lady Paula, and eyes as they looked upon it. It was

ASK YOUR NEIGHBOR

There is hardly a neighborhood in the United States where women cannot be found who have derived benefit from Lydia B. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For nearly fifty years this famous medicine has been overcoming some of the worst female ailments. One woman has been benefited by its use who has told others who have used it with the same good results. The use of this medicine has spread from shore to shore by the recommendation of those who have found it to be the best. Ask your neighbor; let her tell you from experience the benefit which all women derive from it. —Advertisement.

Man Loses Hundreds of Dollars

"I am sorry I did not hear of May's Wonderful Remedy a few years ago, as it would have saved me several hundred dollars. Five years I suffered from indigestion and severe bloating. I grew worse all the time. My doctor said an operation would be all that could save me. I took a course of May's Wonderful Remedy instead, and for the past year have been entirely well." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the extraneous mucus from the intestinal tract and allows the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. Yet thousands of people are feeling old, worn-out and discouraged—tormented with backache and sharp, stabbing pains—misery with headaches, dizziness and bladder irregularities. Are you one of the unfortunate? Then you should realize that these are common signs of kidney weakness, and begin using Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's will bring relief to you, and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

Here's a Jansville Case: C. Nehls, says: "I was troubled with my kidneys, and my back was so sore, I could hardly stoop and at night I couldn't rest well. Mornings my back was lame and stiff and I had headaches. My kidneys acted irregularly and they were weak. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and was cured."

CHAPTER XXIX

"As a Tale That Was Told," My God! It was Ross Duggan who spoke. Just to think of it! Just to think of it! You must not forget he's dead, Ross, and beyond all chance of your remembering with him, and that the dead cannot speak up for themselves!" cried Maud Duggan, in a wrong voice. "Don't say anything you will be sorry for, I beg of you! Mr. Cleek, this is come as something in the nature of a shock to my brother and me, and—and it's going to take some time to let this part of your story sink in. It seems dreadful that one's father—"

And yet there are many who have done worse—far worse," threw in Cleek, with uplifted hand, as she paused and looked at him out of unclouded eyes. "You must learn to forgive, Miss Duggan. That is a lesson which both you and your brother have got to learn, and don't forget, with the learning of this thing took place more than seventeen years ago—before your father was married to his present wife. Sinking up dead as he was, he sort of got on an unprofitable one. I would never have spoken only that therein lay the motive of James Tavish's crime, and for seventeen years he has worked for it. The unenviable patience of the man, the appalling sense of revenge, for at the end of that time his bitterness to the man who had wronged his sister was even greater than when the thing itself took place. How long has he been in your father's employ?"

"And I take it he was well known locally before that?"

"The family was certainly an old local one, Mr. Cleek, and, in fact, I have heard the story go that James Tavish was the original Peasant Girl on her mother's side."

"Oh! Well, that may or may not be. Vendettas are not only carried out in such distant cities, Mr. Duggan, I've learned that lesson to my cost many times since I took up this profession. And the Scotch temperament is a dangerous one, and not forgiving. "As a Tale That Was Told," My God! It was Ross Duggan who spoke. Just to think of it! Just to think of it! You must not forget he's dead, Ross, and beyond all chance of your remembering with him, and that the dead cannot speak up for themselves!" cried Maud Duggan, in a wrong voice. "Don't say anything you will be sorry for, I beg of you! Mr. Cleek, this is come as something in the nature of a shock to my brother and me, and—and it's going to take some time to let this part of your story sink in. It seems dreadful that one's father—"

And yet there are many who have done worse—far worse," threw in Cleek, with uplifted hand, as she paused and looked at him out of unclouded eyes. "You must learn to forgive, Miss Duggan. That is a lesson which both you and your brother have got to learn, and don't forget, with the learning of this thing took place more than seventeen years ago—before your father was married to his present wife. Sinking up dead as he was, he sort of got on an unprofitable one. I would never have spoken only that therein lay the motive of James Tavish's crime, and for seventeen years he has worked for it. The unenviable patience of the man, the appalling sense of revenge, for at the end of that time his bitterness to the man who had wronged his sister was even greater than when the thing itself took place. How long has he been in your father's employ?"

"And I take it he was well known locally before that?"

"The family was certainly an old local one, Mr. Cleek, and, in fact, I have heard the story go that James Tavish was the original Peasant Girl on her mother's side."

LATEST MARKET REPORT

GRAIN

Chicago Review.—Reports that Greece had shipped 20,000 tons of durum and hard winter wheat for September shipment from the United States was a factor in causing wheat prices to advance a little higher in price during the early dealings. Firmness of Liverpool quotations in the case of yesterday's dealings came here, counted also as a bullish influence. On the other hand, however, the business of a grain company here as a result of financial difficulties acted as a check on buyers. The wheat which varied from 12c to 14c, with September 31.01 1/2 to 12.02 1/2, and Dec. 1.06 to 1.06 1/2, was followed by a decline to 12.01 1/2 and 1.05 1/2, respectively, and then a rally.

Offerings increased in the later dealings, but the market was sustained. Predictions of rain in Canada likely to delay the crop movement and by reason that Russia could prohibit grain exports. The close was steady at the same as yesterday's finish to 12c low, Sept. 1.01 1/2 and Dec. 1.05 1/2 to 1.06.

Closing out of traders by an embarrassed grain company had a depressing influence on corn and oats. After opening unchanged to 1/2c lower, Dec. 1.05 1/2 to 1.06, the corn market continued to sag.

Oats started at 3/4c decline to 1 1/2c advance, Dec. 39 1/2 to 40 1/2, and oats showed additional losses and then recovered somewhat.

Flower quotations on heavy weakened the provision market.

SEEK BOOTLEGGER WHO SOLD BLIVEN

Attempt Being Made to Save 72-Year-Old Man from Prison.

Faced with the gloomy prospect of spending 18 months of his life in the state penitentiary at Waupun, Bliven, 72, remains in the stocks, having failed to give authorities the evidence as to the identity of the bootlegger who sold him the moonshine which resulted in the prison sentence pronounced last Thursday by Judge H. H. Maxfield.

Only on condition that he do this has the judge indicated that he would grant a motion for suspension of sentence and placing Bliven under the state board of control. For five days efforts have been made to locate the liquor peddler to no avail.

Take Beloit Man

On information furnished by Mrs. Bliven, a Beloit alien, was taken by Constable of the Beloit and brought to Janesville but neither she nor her husband identified him as the man. Mrs. Bliven told the court the man who brought the moonshine to her husband came in an automobile and also stopped at a neighbor's house. Members of this family were subpoenaed but did not appear.

Unless the bootlegger in question is found, Bliven will have to serve the prison term. Judge Maxfield declared.

Bank's Sentence Legal

In regard to the question raised that under the Severeon act a second offense may be given only a full sentence of 2,000 fine, the judge explained he sentenced Bliven under a statute on the books long before the law was enacted. This section provides that where a man is found guilty of an offense punishable by only a jail sentence, he is liable to three years in the penitentiary when he is found guilty of a second offense. This statute, the judge said, has been upheld by the supreme court and there is nothing in the Severeon act to indicate this section does not apply to it.
